The Joy of Fishing

The two West Sacramento Rotary clubs' annual "Take a Kid Fishin' in Our Community" day returned on April 25. Several hundred kids had a chance to borrow a fishing pole and try their luck at a pond near Linden Road and the Nugget Center in West Sacramento, helped by volunteers. Bait, poles and help were all provided, courtesy of the city's West Sacramento and Centennial Rotary clubs and other volunteers.

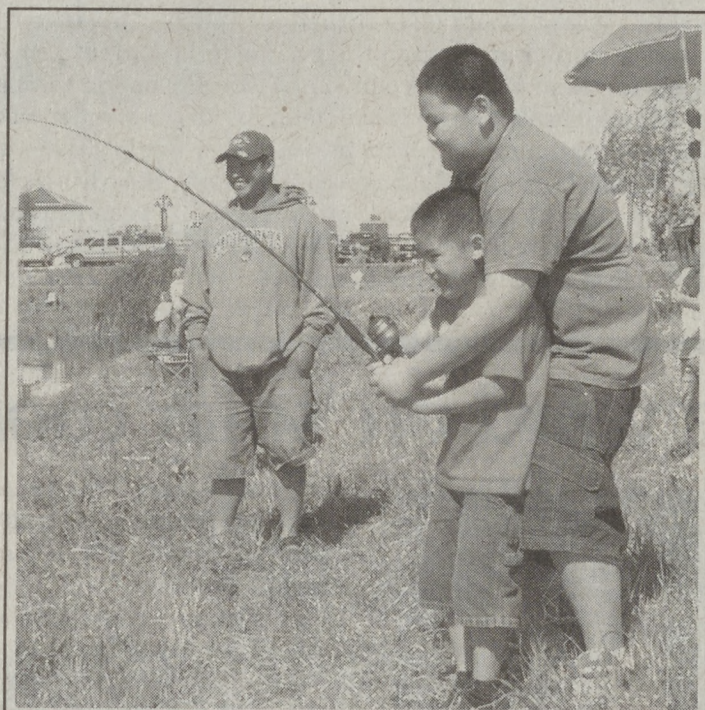

Prize for the biggest fish of the day went to Rudy Saechin, who hooked a carp over 15 inches long. Tia Kiltan won the "smallest fish of the day" award with an eight inch bluegill. The pair each won a new pole donated by Kokanee Power.

Others who had good luck included "T.J.," with both a 14" and 11" bass, Amy Chan with a 14" catfish and seven-inch bluegill, and Marissa Morazzini with a 14 1/4" catfish.

Choosing a set of rules to 'build green'—

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A city council proposal on how to "go green" got a little bit black-and-blue in front of the city Housing Advising Commission on Monday. The commission's chair, Matthew Hargrove, expressed concerns that the proposed "green building ordinance" is going about its goals the wrong way.

The city's architect, Randy Goodwin, told the commission that he'd been directed by the city council to establish environmentally-conscious building standards in West Sacramento. A tentative plan was developed after looking at similar efforts in cities such as Rohnert Park, Richmond and San Francisco. The local plan, which would affect new projects over 4,000 square feet, encourages them to be built to be easy on the environment. The ordinance would set standards for new residential, industrial, and commercial buildings.

The plan is "to judge a building by its assets," said Goodwin. "Points are based on credits for big 'sustainable' ideas, like using less water, filtering your storm water, (mitigating) the 'heat island' effect or using less energy."

Builders would pay a fee to the city or to the authors of the standards for a project review, said Goodwin. There could be a "rebate" for those who pass the test.

West Sacramento would borrow standards directly from the LEED and "Build It Green" private organizations. LEED, for example, has escalating sets of criteria topping out at "platinum" certification, followed by "gold" and "silver" levels of environmental responsibility. The city itself is aiming for "gold" certification of the community center building under construction, and expects to earn at least a "silver" rating from LEED by the time the project is through.

But commission chairman Hargrove objected to the Leed/Build It Green approach. He cited his experience working on environmental regulation with the state. He asked why West Sacramento would adopt privately-written standards instead of modifying state codes to meet the same purpose.

"I think this is the city not taking responsibility for its own codes," said Hargrove, adding that the private standards were rejected by the state itself after consideration. "Those bills were rejected by the governor. It concerns me that we are adopting something that's been rejected as not good for the state of California. . . My concern here is about taking two private programs and adopting them 'off the shelf' as our building codes."

Hargrove stressed that he was in favor of the "green" goal, here, but worried that combining new standards with state rules and local building codes would make things more difficult for builders.

Commissioner Marc Johnson mentioned that "the City of Santa Rosa estimates that this adds $4,000 to the cost of a new home," although commission members also noted that an environmentally-friendly home can use less energy and be cheaper to live in for the long run. Builders have "embraced" the proposal to add a green building ordinance, Goodwin told them.

One of the commission's main charges is to promote the city's stock of affordable housing and low-income housing. When asked how a "green" ordinance might affect that construction segment, Paul Dirksen of the city redevelopment agency explained that "affordable housing developers are incentivized to have a 'green' program" in order to attract state and federal funding.

Hargrove proposed a different approach to the goal: using the state's "Title 24" construction standards instead:

"I would be much more comfortable if the city said we want to go 25 percent above the current building standards," he opined. "(Perhaps builders would have to) get 90 points on Energy Star -- that gets you to the same place, but it lets the builder decide how to get there."

The proposed ordinance, at this stage, is just collecting public comments. Goodwin said he would take those voiced by the housing advisory commission back for more staff review.

Clean-up event starts today: drop off furniture, tires, more

The City of West Sacramento's "Spring Clean-up" event will be held May 13-16.

This free, bulky waste drop-off event, located at 540 Harbor Blvd, will be open Wednesday to Friday 4 pm to 7 pm and Saturday 9 am to 3 pm. Acceptable items include furniture, mattresses and box springs, cardboard, and tires (9 tire limit). Proof of West Sacramento residency, city utility bill or driver license, is required to enter the site.

Scrap metal & appliances will not be accepted at the clean-up site. J & M Metal Recycling, located at 2205 Rice Blvd, accepts all scrap metal and appliances free of charge year-round.

Wood and green waste recycling is no longer available in West Sacramento or at this event. Instead, a landfill voucher will be included in your April utility bill and is valid for one residential load of wood and/or green waste at the Yolo County Central Landfill.

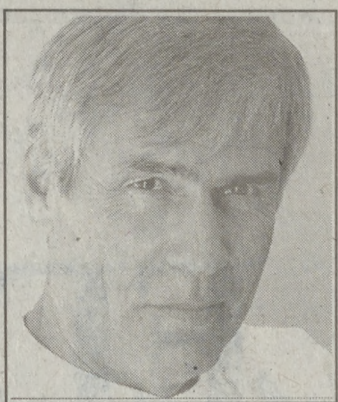

Visit www.westsacrecycles.org for more information about clean-up week. You may also call the Recycling Division at (916) 617-4590.

Are we becoming a nation of cheaters?

When I was a young boy growing up on Michigan Boulevard in West Sacramento, I had a small but loyal group of friends that I played with from pretty much dawn to dusk during the summertime. We all loved sports (especially baseball) and once school was out we grabbed our bats and mitts, chose up sides, and invented all kinds of interesting ways to play the game we loved. We didn't always have access to a regulation hardball or softball, so we would often use rubber balls, or whiffle balls, or even sock balls we made ourselves with the help of rubber bands and some old holey socks our mothers were willing to part with.

The first problem (after coming up with a ball) was to find a field of dreams to play on. The local school diamonds were usually too big and dusty to properly accommodate our little group of six (Billy Nichols, Richie Yancey, Ray Harrell, Doug Felton, Mike Crumley and I were pretty much the regulars), so we would often play in our backyards, or over at the El Rancho Drive-In Theater, which had a wonderful little patch of thick green grass out front where we would line up our bicycles and use them as an outfield fence. One year we even decided to build our own field, and with our fathers' shovels in hand, we attempted (in vain as it turned out) to carve out a baseball diamond on a little piece of weed-infested city-owned land that is now a tiny park next to Safeway. And when the summer heat got so bad that playing baseball on any diamond anywhere would probably lead to heatstroke, we simply took the game we loved indoors.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

It was called dice-baseball, and the way it was played was very simple. First, everyone chose a professional team (in my case it was always the Milwaukee Braves) and once everyone had done that, we would make out our lineups, usually the exact same starting lineups of our favorite teams, which we all knew by heart. In fact, I can still remember the starting lineup of the 1958 Milwaukee Braves: Aaron, Burton and Covington in the outfield — Mathews, Logan, Mantilla, and Adcock in the infield — Crandall was the catcher — and Spahn and Burdette did most of the pitching. Then we would start rolling the dice! For instance (although I no longer remember what all the combinations meant), two threes was a triple; two fours or two sixes was a home run; a six and a three was a groundout to shortstop; and a two and an eight was a flyout to centerfield. And so it went, every role of the dice meaning either a hit or an out, which was then carefully recorded in our team notebooks, so that at the end of the long hot summer, after having played dozens of dice-baseball games, we were able to have reliable statistics on all our teams and their players, just like the real major league teams have done since the invention of the game — which finally brings me to the subject of this little column.

Last week, Manny Ramirez, the star outfielder of the Los Angeles Dodgers, was suspended for 50 games for violating major league baseball's policy against the use of performance-enhancing drugs. In other words, he was caught cheating, like so many other baseball stars in the recent past, including Barry Bonds, Mark McGwire, Sammy Sosa, Roger Clemens, and most recently, Alex Rodriguez. His excuse was so lame that it wasn't even believable to major league baseball officials, most of whom have turned a blind eye to the steroid problem in their game for more years than I care to count. And what none of these cheaters seem to understand (not to mention the hundreds who haven't been caught yet) is that they have completely screwed up the statistical integrity of professional baseball forever, making it almost impossible to compare the feats and careers of past baseball stars with present ones, which has always been at the heart of fathers passing down their love of the game to their sons.

And baseball isn't the only sport overflowing with cheaters. The same crap is going on in track and field, football, hockey, cycling — even most of the Olympic sports. But baseball is the game I grew up loving, so I take it a little personal. I mean, what has happened to this country, when even our national pastime could care less about honesty and integrity? It's almost like we have become a country of cheaters and liars, be they ballplayers, or politicians, or the guys doing the ponzi schemes, or the Wall Street inside-traders, or the banks charging us exorbitant credit card fees, or the realtors and loan agents who sold people homes they knew they couldn't afford, or the corporations who send their profits offshore so they won't have to pay taxes.

It seems as if everyone is so determined to get as big a piece of the America pie as humanly possible that they no longer care how they go about doing it, not to mention that they don't seem to have one ounce of empathy for those trying to live on the pie crumbs that are left. And in terms of baseball, it makes a person long for the days when devoted fans didn't have to wonder who was cheating and who wasn't — only if there were enough hot dogs and beer in Babe Ruth's fat stomach that afternoon to give his non-steroid manufactured body the energy it would need for the beloved Bambino to swat another majestic home run.

Westmore Oaks class spreads the word on 'solar cooking'

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Westmore Oaks Elementary School has received a $5,000 "Bright Ideas" grant from PG&E.

The school was one of 23 to receive money from the utility company. The grants are intended to help schools save energy and money, and "educate the leaders of tomorrow in environmental stewardship," said PG&E.

Jennifer Rhinehart, a second grade teacher at the school, told the News-Ledger the money is going into a solar cooking educational project. She and fellow teacher Michael Lugo are among a handful of solar cooking devotees around the campus. How will the grant be used for kids?

"My class is going to work on solar cooking throughout the year," said Rhinehart. "At the end of the year, our second graders are going to go into the first grade classes and teach them how to solar-cook, and leave them with a solar cooker. They will also go into other second grade classes and

Ms. Rhinehart and her class do some baking in a solar cooker do the same thing. They are going to be 'journaling' about it all year, so there will be lots of writing, too."

Solar cooking uses reflective surfaces to harness the sun to cook. But what, exactly, can you cook this way?

"Because we like cake so much, we do lots of cake and brownies (in the class)," said Rhinehart. "We have toasted marshmallows. Bread is easy. Mr. Lugo has even cooked meat this way at home."

Why teach solar cooking to kids?

"Cooking this way in the Sacramento area is really practical," answered Rhinehart. "But the bigger idea is to get kids interested in alternate ways of cooking. And once they get interested in solar energy, they get say hey, are there other ways of generating energy? Their families get involved, too."

The semi-pro River City Gators weren't very congenial hosts last Saturday to the visiting California Warriors from San Jose.

The Gators ran away with a 62-0 win on the home field, playing at River City High School.

The team promises a closer and more hard-fought game when Marin comes to town this Saturday. Kickoff at RCHS's stadium is scheduled for 4 p.m.

The event will be "Firemen & Policemen Appreciation Day." Firefighters and police may just show their badge or ID at the door and get free admission.

Research your house or your ancestors at the Archives

Starting in May the Yolo County Archives will again be providing public hours, by appointment-only, one Saturday a month through the remainder of the summer. The open hours on Saturdays are meant to provide residents who may not typically visit the archives, or who are unable to visit during regular business hours, opportunity to do research on a variety of subjects.

The user-friendly Yolo County Archives are commonly used for purposes of researching the history of homes or businesses, for genealogical searches, or for historical research. The archives contain materials, some dating back to the county's beginning in 1850, relating to property and tax records, court documents, Board of Supervisors records, and maps and blueprints, as well as various reference items including county history books, photograph collections, over 25,000 obituaries in alphabetical order, and church and cemetery records.

"Our archives staff welcomes both beginner and experienced researchers alike," said Yolo County Board of Supervisors Chair Mike McGowan. "Want to know more about your family history? Visit the archives. Want to know the history of your house? Visit the archives. Our experienced and knowledgeable archive staff is here to help."

"In our archives we've seen local history buffs conduct research on a broad range of topics including the history of African Americans in Yolo County, historic landscapes and gardens, the irrigation and water ways of the county, and even a search for sunken ships," said Archives Coordinator Mel Russell. "The Yolo County Archives is the primary source for the history of Yolo County."

The summary Saturdays schedule is 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon on the following days: May 30, Jun. 27, Jul. 25, Aug. 29.

Appointments to visit the Yolo County Archives can be made by calling (530) 666-8010 or by e-mailing: mel.russell@yolocounty.org. Visitors are asked to leave food, drink and pens behind.

• Bored with regular coffee, but don't want to spend a lot on flavored coffee grounds? Do it in-house and by the cup using ingredients you probably already have on hand. Use almond or vanilla extract. A few drops will flavor up a cup. Try cinnamon or cocoa powder, or stir in a butterscotch hard candy for sweetness as well as flavor.

• Here's a great e-mail tip from G.L. that's both money-saving and landfill-saving: "When making a quilt, you can save money by using an old blanket instead of batting."

• "I keep several toothbrushes for cleaning, and when I add one to my collection, I make sure to wrap the handle in masking tape. That way it can never be confused for a regular toothbrush again." — R.R. in Florida

• To clean a bread board, dampen the surface, then sprinkle liberally with salt. Use the cut side of a lemon half to scrub the surface. Allow it to dry.

• "I bake a lot of pies for Easter. Now that it's over, I have found the perfect trick to freezing them and locking in taste: plastic cereal bags. Another lady in my church brought a pie and carried it in this plastic sleeve. I asked her what kind of bag it was, and it was the waxed-paper bag from a box of cereal. She swears it works very well in the freezer, and it's easy to just slip the pie in and seal. I'll be using this hint for my Thanksgiving pies." — S.W. in Wisconsin

COMMENTARY:

A way for teens to skip the danger -- 'Grad Nite' provides safer alternative

By Don Bosley
Collings West Sacramento
Teen Center

In various cities and towns all across America, somebody's teenager will be killed on graduation night this year. A tragic trail of statistics virtually guarantees it. The Collings Teen Center, the City of West Sacramento, and several community partners are doing all they can to ensure that West Sacramento isn't one of those cities. For the sixth straight year, CTC will host a safe, sober and sensational alternative for the graduating seniors of River City High School. Grad Night '09 runs from 8 p.m. to 3 a.m. on June 6, and it'll feature everything that a momentous graduation party should — including Buck, the untamable mechanical bull, and two $500 grand prizes at the end of the night.

"Grad Night is one of the most important things we do all year long," said John Jordan, CTC's executive director. "It's always a monster party, so that's great. But when you start talking about potentially saving the lives of young people ... well, for us, that takes the stakes up quite a bit."

Statistics indicate that graduation night is one of the most tragic nights for young people in America. Alcohol is a frequent staple of graduation celebrations, and the results can be shattering. Consider: Nationwide every year, more than 60 percent of the 15-to-20-year-old traffic fatalities occur in April, May and June — the months of prom and graduation.

A recent California Highway Patrol study has shown that "by far, the highest number of teen drunk-driving accidents happen on graduation night."

Vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for young people aged 15 to 20, accounting for more than 20 percent of the nation's annual traffic fatalities.

Nearly one-third of those young fatalities had been drinking, with more than 25 percent having reached a blood-alcohol concentration level of 0.8 or higher.

Co-designed with representatives of the RCHS senior class, Grad Night '09 will also feature mountains of great food; thousands of dollars in cash prizes throughout the night; Monte Carlo and Blackjack tables; high-quality D.J. music; huge inflatables (including the mechanical bull, the most popular inflatable in America); the Cash Cube, where participants try to grab as many flying bills as they can in the time allotted; pool and basketball tournaments; dancing; and more.

CTC is staging the event with sponsorship help from the City of West Sacramento, Wal-Mart, Glass West, and others. Tickets are just $25 and available at the RCHS' bookkeepers' office or the teen center. In addition, scholarships are available for any hardship graduate.

For more information about Grad Night '09, contact the Collings Teen Center at (916) 375-0681.

Assembly bill would authorize Yolo to try several 'vote by mail' elections

Assemblymember Mariko Yamada's (D-Davis) AB 1228, a bill that would give California the opportunity to gather information on all-mail elections by establishing an all-mail pilot project in Yolo County, passed out of the Assembly Elections Committee today.

"Yolo County is a perfect fit for this pilot program," said Assemblymember Mariko

Yamada in a press release, "With four cities, a large university, and a diverse set of rural communities, the potential for gathering useful information about all-mail balloting can help guide the future of elections in California."

Yolo County Clerk-Recorder Freddie Oakley testified on behalf of AB 1228 this month.

AB 1228 will allow for up to three local elections to be conducted using mail ballots as the primary voting system. These elections would not be held on the same date as general or statewide elections and would have a specified number of polling places open to accommodate those who are unable or prefer not to vote using a mailed ballot. The ballots would be delivered with the normal voting information distributed for elections and would have prepaid postage.

AB 1228 also requires that the county report the success of the all-mail ballot election to the Legislature and the California Secretary of State within 6 months of that election. The report would include any statistics on the cost to conduct the election, the turnout of different populations, the number of ballots that were not counted and the reasons why they were rejected, any voter fraud problems and any other problems that became known to the county during the election. The report would also compare the success of the all-mailed ballot election to similar elections not conducted as all-mailed ballot elections in Yolo County.

"Other state have successfully implemented all-mail ballot elections," said Yamada. "This pilot program and companion study element will help us find out whether all-mail balloting is in California's future."

The Sacramento River registered 1 foot 6 inches U. S. gauge at the bridge yesterday. That gauge is far from correct for at the point it is located there is at least five feet of water. During several years past the river has been scouring its bed so that now the time is ripe to place the gauge so that its figures may convey, at least, a reasonable resemblance to truth. Late last night the gauge registered 3 feet 2 inches.

Complaint has been heard during the past week that cattle are being placed on the public school grounds to graze and that the owners know some damage is being done especially to flowers that were planted last spring by the school children. The school trustees have asked Constable Buckingham to impound the cattle and call their owners before Judge Barry. The fine for cattle trespassing is $15. Two cows owned in the neighborhood are the principal vagrants that are doing the damage. Both of them have voracious appetites and are not satisfied with grass of which there is a plentiful supply.

Philip Wolfe arrived from Philadelphia last Wednesday to spend a 30-day furlough with his relatives in Washington. He has been promoted to the position of first class shipfitter in the navy.

August Brietzke with W. A. Parkinson and J. Williams went to Stockton last Saturday to haul Brietzke's grain crop to the warehouse. Two trucks were driven to the Slough City where they will be used during ten days or two weeks. In all there are 60,000 sacks of grain of which Brietzke owns 20,000. The grain is to be shipped to England to make beer, at which he rails like a good fellow. A saloonman, Brietzke deeply feels this insult to his common sense because he expected to be able to sell his barley to the brewers of California.

A progressive Chinaman, Sing Lee has had his laundry on Second street wired for electric juice and his place is lighted up as few other laundries are done. Bill Campbell did the wiring and guaranteed no fire would result.

Mrs. Wm. Wood is at home after a month's vacation at San Francisco and other bay points.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Palm are spending a vacation at Seabright where they expect to remain about ten days more.

The Ramirez family has moved to Selma to make its permanent residence there.

Joe Borges, the two-year-old son of Mrs. Borges, has so badly sprained his hand that it has been placed in splints.

The California National Bank of Sacramento petitioned the Superior Court, asking for an order requiring the executrices in the estate of William E. Lovdal, who died in 1912, to sell enough property in the estate in order that $40,000 owed to them might be paid. The executrices are Ovidia A. White, Emma T. L. Beardslee and Katherine B. Fisk. A short time ago the bank filed a petition asking that they be removed from the office of executrices which was refused.

Mrs. P. K. Graves entertained at a pre-nuptial dinner last Friday at her home in honor of Miss Madeline Treadwell and Alfred Akerson, who were married at the Swedish Lutheran Church in Sacramento. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson of Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Robbins, and the bridal couple.

Mrs. P. A. Hart was a visitor to Verona Sunday.

A good attendance helped out the Firemen dance in Riverbank last Saturday evening. The crowd was in a jovial mood and the music was good. Young and old enjoyed the entertainment.

Mrs. Jed Lee is spending two weeks in Los Angeles, a guest of her daughter, Mrs. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Johnson and son, Lloyd, are spending the week-end at Strawberry.

The Van Deren family has gone to Klamath Lake for a short vacation.

Mrs. F. De Riso and son, John, are at home after a few days visit with her sister, Mrs. Brash, in Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fuller have returned from a motor trip to Mendocino County.

WOMEN OF THE W. C. T. U., WHAT WILL YOU DO TO THE TOBACCO FACTORY IN WOODLAND?

The establishment of a tobacco factory in or near the city of Woodland is practically assured because James Chiflakos, a large tobacco grower of Esparto, returned from the East on July 15th and issued assurances that a tobacco factory of some kind was necessary to take care of the Yolo County crop.

It is a well known fact that the reformers of the State and the Nation and particularly of Yolo County, having subdued the demon rum or killed off John Barleycorn are about to attack the tobacco business.

At the root of the trouble is the W. C. T. U., an organization extremely strong in Yolo County.

Will the ladies of the W. C. T. U. countenance in the midst of a puritanical community the existence of such a thing as a tobacco factory?

Successfully relegating into deterioration the grape crop of Yolo County, will these well-intentioned ladies permit another evil to become successful in its detrimental effects on the manhood and boyhood of the county?

Or will you, ladies of Yolo County, permit a growing industry to become successful even though in some cases men and boys over indulge to their own detriment?

OUT OF BED AGAIN AND ATTENDING TO BUSINESS

J. N. Blair, who has been confined to his home for nearly a year suffering severely from rheumatism, is again able to be around attending to his business, and although, suffering somewhat with his complaint bears up gracefully with a cheerful smile and a happy disposition.

During six weeks he was in a San Francisco hospital under observation by specialists expecting that the grim reaper might call some evening and beckon to him.

Blair fought and his reward is practically a cure that looks permanent.

GAS SUPPLY AT A STANDSTILL

Owing to the absence of many ladies of Washington on their vacations very little, if anything, has been done towards securing a fuel gas supply for the homes of the town.

After the vacation period the ladies promise to go ahead with the work of getting signatures.

Washington Water Works, has built a new fence about the property of the company.

Al Zeimer, proprietor of the Riverbank Inn, is at home after an auto trip to Fresno. His intention was to go to Mexico but found on his way south that he would have to be in possession of a passport to cross the international line. This he did not have and came home to secure one. Zeimer is looking for a location to invest his money if prohibition prevents him from doing business in California.

The Riverbank firemen have decided to give no more of those popular dances on Saturday evenings till the month of October. So many people are away on their vacations that the attendance has been falling off.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hughes have returned from a trip to Lake Tahoe.

Miss Virginia Ferrer and father, Frank Ferrer, are visiting at the home of Miss Ferrer's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Lueck. Ferrer has recently returned from France, where he was with the ambulance corps.

Miss Edwina Coupe, who has been ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. A. L. Case, has recovered.

Miss Olean Brietzke is, at Haywards for a few weeks' vacation with friends.

S. P. Pankost was at home yesterday from Kyburz, where he spent the past week. He will return to the mountains tomorrow for another week's rest and recreation.

Are you, ladies of the W. C. T. U., going to permit this tobacco industry to grow, knowing that in the future your association will inevitably ask your support in eradicating an evil that has been recognized by your organization as deteriorating to mankind?

Ladies of the W. C. T. U., what will you do? Already your association says the next fight must be on the tobacco evil. So you said at your convention at Santa Rosa.

Then why don't you stop James Chiflakos now from building a tobacco factory right amidst your homes where you may even smell the odors of the noxious weed at your very firesides.

And, ladies of the W. C. T. U., the Independent would like to ask you, what are you going to do about the alfalfa crop and the corn crop of Yolo County because even one of your strong supporters is producing a new intoxicant known as "Silene" in his silos near Davis.

Oh Gawd, Ladies of the W. C. T. U., what must these farmers of Yolo County produce that you may not find fault with it and that those farmers may live and their children eat of the products of the soil.

HOP PICKING WILL START ABOUT AUGUST 25

Hop growers along the river north of Washington are making provisions for pickers, anticipating that there may be a shortage of help around the harvesting season.

Some growers are already receiving applications from families who want to engage in picking and who camp on the grounds where the work is to be done.

Mostly all the growers want white help, although Japanese and Indians will be welcome if a shortage prevails.

The crops along the river are very heavy, a great yield being expected by the growers.

The price, too, is out of the ordinary, varying between 40 and 50 cents, except where contracts were formerly signed.

A big season is anticipated and great numbers of people will find employment in the yards.

Clean picking is imperative this year, because the California hops must enter into competition with German and English products.

Special inspectors will be employed by some growers to insure this.

FARMERS IN DISTRICT 730 OBJECT TO ASSESSMENT.

Woodland, July 21.—Due to the fact that a large number of the land owners of Reclamation District No. 730 plan to vigorously object to the recent assessment levied, the Board of Supervisors to-day were forced to again postpone the hearing of the assessment intended to raise funds to complete work on the district before winter. Landowners have employed attorneys who will be heard September 3d.

It is claimed in the protest of the objectors that the viewers did not inspect the alleged improvements necessary and that as a matter of fact the assessment is for work outside of the district and that it is a burden and absolutely useless to the majority of the owners. The Hershey interests, owning much land in the district, as well as throughout the city and county, are strongest objectors to the assessment.

A bitter fight in which the owners of the district are quite evenly divided, is expected when the hearing comes up.

WASHINGTON WATER COMPANY OPERATING WITHOUT FRANCHISE

It may seem incredible, but it is, nevertheless, true that the Washington Water Company is operating a public utility without a franchise to do business.

Such is the advice received by the Fire Trustees of the district from District Attorney C. C. McDonald. And McDonald adds that the County Recorder Le Pierce and County Clerk Saunders have searched their records and found no trace of a franchise or authority to operate in the district.

If such is the case the Washington Water Company has no power to collect from its clients, and further a franchise must be secured through the Railroad Commission to operate in the future.

These questions were brought forward through the fire which consumed the Pankost and Enright homes on Friday, July 11th, when there was not sufficient water on hand in the tanks to throw a stream farther than two feet from the end of the hose nozzle.

S. P. Pankost is about to enter suit against the company for the loss he sustained over and above the amount of insurance carried by him.

He has instructed his attorney to investigate and if found possible to collect to proceed with the suit.

The fire trustees of Washington, J. S. Lear, I. K. Manchester and A. A. Dassonville, are about to place the question before the Railroad Commission and ask that regulations and concessions be framed to properly govern this public utility.

In other communities a water franchise includes the obligation to supply a full force of water for fighting fire free of charge. It also provides that all the necessary water for street sprinkling must be supplied free of charge.

In the past the Washington Water Company has supplied water to fight fires without charge, but it has always charged for water for street sprinkling.

Fire hydrants are installed all over town. This is evidence that it was the intention of the company to supply water for fire fighting purposes, although some of the directors have argued there is no obligation on the part of the company to furnish water to fight fires.

Perhaps it was fortunate for all the people of Washington, except Pankost and Mrs. Enright, that this matter was brought forward through the late fire. The sooner the question is settled the better, and now is the time to settle it.

It is certain that the Railroad Commission will settle the matter equitably and usually in favor of the people and taxpayers.

DAVIS SCHOOL HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Davis, July 22.—Fire thought to have started from spontaneous combustion in the coal stored in the basement destroyed the two-story grammar school building in this city. The school house was built in 1903 at a cost of about $4,000. It would cost much more now. A piano recently bought was burned as well as other furniture. The loss is about $16,000.

The trustees are planning to erect an eight-room concrete building and plan to have it finished about January 1, 1920. School will open for the fall term about September 15th and the trustees will have trouble finding a building as there is none unoccupied that will accommodate the teachers and pupils.

If there is "nothing in a name" how is it that a Japanese firm of dyers and cleaners have called their institution "The American Dyers and Cleaners," and how is it that the preachers preach chastity and practice profligacy?

The suggestion has been made that the prohibitionist be forced to make good the loss of revenue brought about through their propaganda.

How can they? As a usual thing they are broke all the time and tighter than Job.

TOWN FILLING IS FAVORED BY MANY PROPERTY OWNERS

Few if any of the property owners of Washington find objection to the plan of filling the town suggested two weeks ago in the columns of the Independent.

Below the M street bridge a dredger is clearing a channel for steamers and the method of clearing looks as silly and puerile as that of a child on the seashore with its little bucket and spoon.

If the bed of the river must be kept clear all work done towards that end should tend to a final completion.

Moving sand from one place and stacking it in piles to be leveled later on by higher water is waste of public funds, especially when the cost of a dredger is not less than $150 a day.

If sand must be moved let it be placed on or inside the levee.

If the Federal Government wants a place to put away the sand taken from the bed of the stream the taxpayers of Washington will welcome the filling to raise the town level to that of the S. P. grade on Ann street.

The proper way to dispose of home-generated needles

From Beth Gabor
County of Yolo

Yolo County and the California Product Stewardship Council (CPSC) are working to keep home-generated "sharps" out of State landfills, thanks to a generous grant from the California Integrated Waste Management Board (CIWMB). The State's leading authority on recycling and waste reduction awarded the project $197,680 to create full-circle, "cradle to cradle" programs that design convenient collection procedures for hypodermic needles and other sharps.

Every year more than 355 million home-generated sharps are disposed in California by people using injectible medication to treat diseases such as diabetes, arthritis, migraines, infertility, blood disorders, and for those who medicate pets and livestock. Historically, most of these sharps have been discarded with common waste in garbage cans, recycling bins and even flushed down toilets because most communities lack safe, convenient collection programs. To address the public health dangers of needle sticks to sanitation workers, children and the general public, State legislators passed SB 1305, which made this type of disposal illegal as of September 2008.

"SB 1305 was the first step to address the sharps disposal problem in California. The next integral step is what the California Integrated Waste Management Board is doing by providing the funding essential to create and implement convenient take-back programs that divert sharps from landfills," said Heidi Sanborn, CPSC executive director. "It is imperative that we educate the public on responsible recycling. Making producers ultimately responsible for this waste is the next phase."

CPSC is providing outreach and education about Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR), also known as Product Stewardship, in California. EPR is a policy approach to place a shared responsibility for end-of-life product management on the producers, and all entities involved in the product chain, instead of the general ratepayers, while encouraging product design changes that minimize a negative impact on human health and the environment at every stage of the product's lifecycle. Implementing EPR programs presents an opportunity for the producers of pharmaceuticals that require sharps to inject drugs and the companies who make sharps to take responsibility for these products at end-of-life.

Under the grant, CPSC will provide outreach and education about EPR to the cities of Davis, Woodland, West Sacramento and Winters and help each jurisdiction incorporate product stewardship into their green purchasing policies. CPSC will also help develop educational materials for the sharps collection program.

Yolo County will soon make free drop-off and mail-back containers available to sharps users to easily recycle their used sharps. This program will serve as a trial to determine the disposal method most preferred by sharps users. Sharps containers will be distributed at public locations, such as the Yolo County Central Landfill, Davis Senior Center and area pharmacies. For a complete listing of locations and hours of operation please visit the Yolo County website at www.yolocounty.org, under the landfill tab.

For more information about the program contact Marissa Juhler, Yolo County Integrated Waste Management: 530.666.8813 or Heidi Sanborn, CPSC Executive Director:

Letters to the Editor

Vote 'Yes'

I am urging you to vote YES on all the propositions 1)a-b-c—d-e-f in the May 19 election.

This is necessary to the budget compromise negotiated after 8 hard months by our Republican Governor, and Democratic and Republican legislators. It has parts more liked by Republicans, and parts more liked by Democrats. But if you vote against these, you will give our budget back to "checkmate" in the legislature, gridlocked by a 1/3-plus-one faction of anti-government ideologues. And our schools and public health and safety agencies will be shredded, and the recession will be deepened by further job cuts.

Yolo County Board of Supervisors is already planning to cut too much out of public health - cutting again half of the reimbursements for the uninsured poor, and eliminating all healthcare for those poor who are without documentation. This is too much too soon, because $4 billion is coming to California counties public health programs starting July 1, 2009 with the first year of the federal fiscal stimulus.

We need to hang in there, to protect the public health and safety. The Yolo County Board of Supervisors meets on May 19, in Woodland, at the County Admin Building, 625 Court Street, to hear and vote on the Yolo budget for public health for the uninsured. This is the safety net. Please plan to write or phone your county supervisor, or come to the hearing in person.

Adam Smith, a Scotsman in the 1700s, the primary author of democratic capitalism, wrote, in his book The Wealth of Nations, that everyone "ought to contribute towards the support of the government, as nearly as possible, in proportion to their respective abilities; that is, in proportion to the revenue which they respectively enjoy under the protection of the state."

Proportional taxation is necessary for the government to function to protect and regulate the markets which allow capitalism to flourish fairly.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEW BY DNA SMITH

PICK OF THE WEEK

"The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance" (Paramount Centennial Collection) — "Liberty Valance" is a perfect storm of a film where a legendary director (John Ford), a stellar cast (James Stewart, John Wayne,

John Wayne in "Liberty Valance"

Vera Miles, Lee Marvin) and great story all come together to create a timeless classic.

The film begins on a train, with Stewart as Ransom Stoddard, a U.S. senator, traveling back to the Western town of Shinbone to attend the funeral of a local rancher, Tom Doniphon (Wayne). Stoddard came to fame many years previous as the Man Who Shot Liberty Valance. A reporter on the train asks Stoddard to tell the story of that famous gunfight.

The film goes into full flashback mode as Stoddard recounts his early career as a young lawyer in Shinbone, a town gripped in fear of a local gunslinger named Liberty Valance (Marvin). There also is a love triangle between Stoddard, a young woman named Hallie (Miles) and rancher Tom Doniphon who, realizing Hallie's love for Stoddard, decides to sacrifice his needs for Hallie's happiness. Doniphon begins to help Stoddard in his quest to bring law and literacy to the town. Eventually, Valance has no choice but to kill Stoddard, which leads to the legendary gunfight between the tenderfoot and the outlaw.

This first disc of this two-disc release contains the original film and two commentary tracks. The first is with filmmaker Peter Bogdanovich and features archival interviews with John Ford and James Stewart. The second track has commentaries by John Ford, James Stewart and Lee Marvin on selected scenes. The second disc is packed with extras: several mini-documentaries, theatrical trailers, stills, etc.

DIDN'T SEE 'EM

NEITHER SHOULD YOU

"Paul Blart: Mall Cop" — There's a reason I didn't buy the "Dorf on Golf" video back in the '80s. I saw the trailer and several scenes and could see that it was a dud. The same can be said for "Paul Blart: Mall Cop." I saw the trailers and a few clips from the film. They were so horrible, my chair actually began to bleed. However, if you're one of those people who think a chubby guy riding a Segway and sporting a Comedy Moustache is the acme of humor, then look no further. Although, I must caution you: For every copy of "Paul Blart" sold, a baby deer gets punched in the face. Just sayin'.

"Valkyrie" — Let's be clear: Tom Cruise isn't an actor. He's a movie star. He doesn't need to worry about stupid things like character or motivation. He just needs to look good and put the proper expression on his face that a particular scene calls for. I say this because in "Valkyrie," Cruise is supposedly playing a Nazi officer. A German. But from his accent, you'd think he'd come from the Fresno region of Bavaria. Tom Cruise is to acting what Derek Zoolander is to modeling. The film is about a plot by high-ranking Nazi officers to assassinate Hitler. But from what I've seen of the film, the only thing murdered is your suspension of disbelief and your will to live.

Set in the Wild West of modern-day Bakersfield, Calif., the vices and cravings of the lowlifes who surround and rope in Jimmy crash together in this dark tale. After racking up an impressive gambling debt, Jimmy is abducted by a Cadillac-driving thug named Gambol, who promises torture and threatens death if Jimmy fails to settle up his gambling dues with head brute, Juarez.

With sadistic humor and sharp, barebones dialogue, Johnson evokes the feral grittiness of the old West, the lustful obsessions of the new, and the addictive thrills and untamed reality that define both. In "Nobody Move," he has created characters and crimes that will leave you gripping, if only in your imagination, the creamy white leather seat of a speeding, stolen Cadillac.

SHRIMP AND FISH FAJITAS

- 1/2 tablespoon sweet paprika
- 1/2 tablespoon salt
- 1/2 tablespoon garlic powder
- 1/2 tablespoon onion powder
- 3/4 teaspoon black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper

- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme (or 1 1/2 teaspoons fresh thyme)
- 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano (or 1 1/2 teaspoons fresh oregano)
- 2 pounds medium or large shrimp, shelled and deveined
- 1 pound white fish, such as bass, catfish, cod, orange roughy, salmon, tuna, sole, trout or tilapia
- 1 medium onion, halved
- 1 green bell pepper, seeded and halved
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1/2 cup lime juice

In a small bowl, blend together the paprika, salt, garlic powder, onion powder, black pepper, cayenne pepper, thyme and oregano. Pour the olive oil and lime juice over the fish and shrimp and turn to coat. Use half the spice mixture to season the shrimp and the other half for the fish.

Using a grill basket or other seafood-grilling device, grill fish and shrimp over medium coals for about 5 minutes, stirring shrimp occasionally and turning fish once. (If you do not have a grilling basket, make a small packet with foil, and poke small holes in the packet with a fork.)

At the same time the fish and shrimp are cooking, grill the onion and bell pepper until tender, about five minutes, turning once. Remove from heat and cut fish, onion and bell pepper into strips. Serve in flour tortillas with salsa, guacamole, sour cream and refried beans. Serves 6.
